

Safety Certificates

A safety (or roadworthy) certificate is required when a registered vehicle is offered for sale, transferring registration to a new owner, when re-registering an unregistered vehicle or when transferring to Queensland registration from another state or territory.

We are an approved inspection station and we can get your vehicle inspected and a certificate sent to you electronically at short notice.

A safety certificate inspection is not a comprehensive mechanical inspection on the quality, or life expectancy of a vehicle. If you are buying a used vehicle, you should enquire about our standard and premium inspections
